

German oilseed meal exports decreased

Berlin, 28 January 2026. – According to data from the German Federal Statistical Office, soybean meal exports from German oil mills only reached 741,000 tonnes during the period July to November 2025, representing an 11 per cent decline compared with the reference period of 2024. At the same time, the volume of rapeseed meal placed on the world market also dropped, falling 22 per cent to 537,000 tonnes.

According to investigations by Agrarmarkt Informations-Gesellschaft (mbH), most rapeseed and soybean meal produced in Germany was exported to other EU countries. The ports in the Netherlands were the main recipients for global shipments, as they were in previous years. From July to November 2025, Germany sold around 200,000 tonnes of rapeseed meal to this neighbouring country, representing a 30 per cent decline from the same period the previous year. At around 87,600 tonnes, Denmark received 2 per cent less, although it moved back up to second place among the most important recipients. Rapeseed meal exports to Sweden, Finland and Switzerland also remained below the previous year's levels. German deliveries to France dropped to 42,000 tonnes, a marginal decline compared with the first five months of the 2024/25 marketing year.

Soybean meal also went mostly to other EU countries. The Czech Republic was the largest recipient, with Germany delivering 148,300 tonnes in the period July to November 2025, almost the same volume supplied in the reference period. In contrast, deliveries to Poland jumped from 96,000 tonnes to 106,000 tonnes.
